

We promised 2010 would be a whirlwind year, and we delivered! It is hard to imagine 2011 could be any more unbelievable than this past year.

Of course the best red carpet event of the year, the MinerD wedding! Our special day was truly magical. It was held at The Lodge at Torrey Pines on June 5th, the weather cooperated, family cooperated, even most of our drunk friends cooperated! We are even getting requests to profile the event in various wedding magazines! If you want to view the EXTENSIVE photo library from our photographer drop us an email and we can set you up with a free (and spam-free) account. This is the best way to take in the sights. A honeymoon week in Napa was a perfect wine and food filled end to an unforgettable journey.

It seems our wedding inspired other marriage-ambitious types. We were fortunate to take a short weekend jaunt to New York City to attend the engagement party for Matt Engler and Anne-Marie Leiser! Hosted by the always hospitable Eric Engler, the party (and the weekend) was a huge success. Congrats!

Travel was otherwise light on the personal front, but work sent Curt to Orlando and Vegas for conferences, and to England for a week to meet with a new client. Business has picked up nicely. Liz had a very busy second year with Reed Smith, but has managed to stay sane and her peers are more than impressed with her budding potential. She also completed the 2010 LA Marathon in March and survived to tell the tale. We currently enjoy spending time together at the Arthur Murray dance studio in Sherman Oaks, dancing the night away (a few glasses of wine help loosen up the old joints) and learning how to be "less white." Except for the waltz, that's all white.

Music made a brief but satisfying return to Curt's life this year. A quick two city reunion tour for 3against1 had the band blasting away in San Diego's 710 Club and at Hollywood's beloved Viper Room. Hopefully the group will find some time to pull together another one-off for 2011 so we can relive our glory days.

And the kids are alright. Roxy at 4 years has not shown a day of aging, and a second fish tank has spontaneously grown in the office. Curt's first tank has turned into a miniature coral farm and all the other reef geeks in LA love him. He has yet to take them up on their Dungeon and Dragons parties.

While life naturally throws us curve balls and high-and-tight fastballs, we hope you can reflect on this past year with us and smile at all the fun we've had. Have a safe and happy new year!

Liz and Curt
